This extension is inspired by the Mackey board. KeyMacro is a macro keyboard utility for your web browser. Mackeyboard can be used as normal keyboard, only that every key will execute a specific macro. For instance if you press the "F" key three times, Mackeyboard will execute the "jump to the next page" macro. If you press F (without the quotes) three times, Mackeyboard will execute the "jump to the top of the page" macro. KeyMacro is inspired by the Mackeyboard but offers much more. You can define your own macros, even to make your browser act like a keyboard and you will have great possibilities. The possibilities are unlimited, the sky is the limit. The interface is easy to use. There are no buttons, instead, all actions are mapped to a sequence of keys. Some settings are done in the browser, some in the Preferences. But what is great is that you can configure macros in the preferences. Visual representation You can see the macros you have defined in the preferences. * Underline cursor (above, in the tab "Appearance" and in the bar below) * In tabs (under "Pressing the Tab key") * Lines (under "Lines") * Links (under "Links") * Mouse (under "Mouse") * Characters (under "Characters") * Quotes (under "Quotes") * Visual representation (under "Visual representation" and in "Keyboard") New messages, time You can see a time of day in the tab "Appearance" under "Time of day". An efficient extension designed to get you the most out of Gmail. Manage multiple Gmail accounts Easily customize notifications and filters View messages on the desktop Synchronize Opera bookmarks Tag messages, and more Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a method for controlling an automatic transmission of a vehicle. 2. Description of the Related Art A vehicle with an automatic transmission mounted thereon is usually equipped with a shift lever operated by the driver for the purpose of selecting an automatic transmission position. When a vehicle is in motion, the driver operates the shift lever to shift the vehicle from one transmission position to another, with the intention of regulating the automatic transmission to provide a comfortable driving condition. That is, the driver changes the drive condition of the vehicle by operating the shift lever. When the vehicle is stopped or is in motion with the automatic transmission in the neutral state, the drive condition of the vehicle can be changed by operating the shift lever, with the intention of selecting the transmission position of the automatic transmission. That is, the driver can change the drive condition of the vehicle while in motion. When the driver intends to engage the forward clutch to the state of the drive position, the driver must release the brake pedal, which is not easy for the driver. When the driver intends to release the automatic transmission, the driver must depress the brake pedal, which also is not easy for the driver. However, the above problem can be solved by an automatic transmission with a so-called manual clutch function. In this case, when the driver intends to release the automatic transmission, the driver is required to move the shift lever to a release position. This operation is referred to as the automatic clutch release. In the automatic clutch release operation, the driver first depresses the brake pedal to release the automatic clutch. Next, the driver depresses the accelerator pedal to start the vehicle. The driver then releases the brake pedal. After that, the driver releases the accelerator pedal. In this case, the vehicle is stopped after a predetermined time. When the driver intends to engage the automatic clutch, the driver must depress the accelerator pedal and maintain the depression of the accelerator pedal until the automatic clutch is engaged. In the conventional automatic clutch release, the above operation is quite difficult for the driver to perform.Q: Comparing files of different times I am having problems with comparison
