Lawyers for Tesla CEO Elon Musk say the SEC examiner who wrote a scathing letter to Tesla on the eve of the company's IPO filed a complaint that "fails to support his conclusions." "The complaint relies on erroneous assumptions about the facts of the case and the content of Musk's statements and tweets," Tesla and SpaceX co-founder and CEO Musk's lead lawyer Howard Kupperman said. The complaint by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission examiner to the SEC outlines a number of reasons why Tesla deserves to have its IPO delayed. In early June, SEC examiner Nellie Liang wrote a letter to SEC chair Mary Jo White expressing her "deep concerns" about the company, citing issues such as the fact that Tesla CEO Elon Musk had made "fundamental misrepresentations" to investors by projecting Model 3 production at a rate of 5,000 cars per week when the company was producing just 400 at a rate of 50 per week. Liang also raised concerns about Musk's "freefall" in the company's stock price following the resignation of longtime CFO Jason Wheeler and cited an email with language that was "likely to mislead" investors about the company's reservations for the Model Y. The move to delay its IPO comes after Musk said Tesla had to "revisit" its entire production and delivery outlook. "Likely now we have to revisit our production outlook for the year," Musk said Friday on Twitter. "Please send your letters to all customers, thanking them for their patience with us while we execute on this important update." A Tesla spokesperson said the firm is not

All of the positions in the annual NHAC meet were filled and yet more than 300 swimmers and athletes braved the unseasonably cool temperatures, wind and two-inch splash on the back of the diving board and left with the feeling that this was a very special meet. "This is really a turning point for the program," said Kevin Gould '09, co-captain of this year's team. "To be able to run with everyone and compete with everyone and to have that much depth in our program, we're going to be a force. This is the year we're going to challenge for the conference championship." "The sport looks great right now because there are so many talented swimmers," said Tom Healy, '98, also co-captain. "But it's our job to make sure they don't run out of steam." The men's team claimed the NCAA Division III championship in 2009 and will be meeting competition such as Brown, Yale, Penn State, Tufts and Boston College at this fall's NCAA Championships. They will also be looking to be the first Northern Hills men's team to compete at the NCAA Championships since that Brown (Mass.) team in 1992.
