Game Game Link: Game Platform: iPhone, iPad, Android Game Mode: Online Game Language: English Game category: ☐☐ Category Archives: Life of the Party Post navigation “I was just looking around and found these 4th of July decorations. I thought I’d paint one and give it to you to make your guests feel welcome on their arrival.” These pinwheels on my table by the kids and me made for a fun piece of art. Well, after buying the painting supplies like gallons of paint and equipment to hold it all, I didn’t want to mess it up so I set up a simple standing easel with glass and 4th of July colored paint, cups of water and brushes. I was glad I didn’t set up my tripod to support it. My standing easel offers a better angle for the little one, and I like the haphazard way it looks. I was nervous about how the painting would look, thinking the steps were going to make the painting look square. I couldn’t have been more wrong! The painting turned out SO good and is the perfect centerpiece for my 4th of July table. I told my friend, Lynn, about it and she said, “Someone should make a frame out of it.” I hope she does. It really looks a lot better than I expected it to. A few friends have asked about the painting and would like me to do some more similar ones for their homes. I took a large brush and tried to get the movement of the water as if it were moving. I didn’t work too hard, but I had fun trying to achieve the look of a river. This photo doesn’t do it justice. The painting actually looks better than the one on this photo! “That’s the first one in a series of your landscape paintings.” How a Landscape Painting is Created: 1st the basic landscape is blocked in. 2nd I start adding the hard edges of the mountains and trees. 3rd I start adding lights and darks to the trees. Once the trees are completed I start adding rocks, then flowers.

. LIGHTNING AND CHARCOAL FIRE EXTINGUISHER: $350 LEATHER HARNESS POUCH, CHARCOAL FIRE EXTINGUISHER, AND SNOW GLOVES. LOSE THE LOSERS: $500 Let's be creative. Let's get some adrenaline pumping. Please let this be something exciting. "Must do project this year" chirps Ben. (end scene continues) There are so many other possible projects. Let's run with the ones Ben suggests. They are all awesome. Each is a lot of fun, and all are milestones on my resolution-tracking project. Awesome fireworks. Awesome park and campground. Awesome firewood purchase (second day of snow). Awesome snowmobile rentals. Awesome sleep later than I intended. Loved that Ben brought a "drinks and snacks" with him. Awesome fence! Awesome fur collar (that turned out to be a chest harness). Awesome (making up for lost time) early start to hiking. There isn't anything wrong with them. Awesome. Here is the challenge. I AM HERE TO HAVE FUN There are a lot of cool things Ben says he wants to do this winter. And there are a lot of things Ben says he intends to do. We shouldn't make this the year that we let the winter be otherwise. Let's be serious and smart about how we spend our money. Let's have fun while doing it. Playing Face Time in Front of the Mountaintop: $500 6:15 AM. I do not like Face Time. If it is raining or snowing I'd rather watch it from home. If I was trying to play couch chess in the family room with the cats on the couch, I'd be embarrassed. Face Time makes me feel terrible. 5:30 AM. 5:30 AM! I did not hear that alarm. It is too early to be awake! With the exception of the freezing cold shower I've taken in the past three days, I did not do anything to prepare for it before leaving for the tower. Get up, put on my snow pants, do a quick jog to the parking lot, get the dogs out, and do my check on the water. Grab a coffee and a granola bar and spend a few
