According to a site called nomoreseasons.com, they are getting rid of all the weekends in July, August, and September in favor of a "3-day weekend." None of the sports are moving, but the site alleges that the new weekend is only going to last three days. And now that everyone knows how long of a weekend would be worth, that means that the other three weekends would become a drag. Nomoreseasons.com says that in addition to people spending money on their stupid vacation, all the businesses that would normally be open will be closed. Thus, they will lose money. Just so everyone is aware, this is the same site that claimed that September 11 was an inside job, that Al Gore stole 2000, that the Bible was written by Jack Chick, that the Westboro Baptist Church is a church for kiddies, and that we should all be buying guns so that we can hunt and harass other people. The site is comically inept and completely made up, but people seem to be falling for it. But do you guys think that three days is enough to make up for all the lost weekends?
